About

I'm currently working as a Jr. UI Developer in the Product team @Jotform, a company with over 25 million users. Our primary focus is to ensure seamless user experiences and continually improve our products.

I'm constantly improving myself in the frontend field and aim to shape my career in this field in the future. To date, I have developed many web projects and designed and coded them myself.

I have also developed systems that can generate passive income by creating my own websites. I aim to develop large-scale web software that appeals to large audiences in the future.
